Problem:

A South Florida staffing firm specializing in the temporary placement of building and construction personnel saw a major upswing in business in the months following Hurricane Wilma. Never believing too much business could be a bad thing, the owners soon found themselves struggling to keep up with demand. They needed capital to support new personnel, and they needed it fast.

Solution:

Within a week, Hamilton was able to visit with the firm, evaluate their financial situation, and structure a financing program that met their growing needs. With Hamilton's quick capital solution, the firm was able to secure the resources it needed to meet their nearly tripled volume.
